into political matters in the following spicy

The people are anxiously awaiting a re-ply to their petition asking for a resident governor-and representative institutions, and The speople are anxiously awaiting a regret ply to their petition asking for a resident governor-and representative institutions, and to have their liberties granted to them and be freed from the present despotic rule, which is a disgrace and tarnish to the British nation—that when advocating liberty in Italy amongst foreigners, they oppress their own people who have come out to colonize a new country and make a habitation for the surplus population of England. With representative institutions we should have a tax on Chinamen; an assisted emigration from England, with land to be given to the emigrant on arrival; and direct postal arrangements by means of a subsidy. All these things we want, and then we may look to see some Englishmen here. A good many are expected this next year from Canada, but I hear of none at present coming from England. From Canada some pioneers first bort I hear of none at present coming from England. From Canada some pioneers first came, who settled themselves to being carpenters, taking up land and making themselves generally useful; they have all done well, and are now sending for their families; and many of their friends and neighbors are coming, and if we could get a stat from England in the same way, very soon an immigration would spring up, and the popular feeling would be so great that England would grant us our liberties without our having to fight for them, which is likely to be the case if a number of colonials are added to the population without any English to to, the population without any English to the mast with a rope to secure min, when he suddenly lead rew a knife and threatened to kill them. They kept on their way, however, and had rearly reached him, whom he suddenly lead on the reached him, whom he suddenly lead rearly reached him, whom he suddenly lead on they are her way, however, and had rearly reached him, whom he suddenly lead of they dept on their way, however, and had rearly reached him, whom he suddenly lead on the reached to kill them. They kept on their way, however, and had rearly reached him, whom he suddenly lead of they are about him shall striking the edge of the dock and instantly killing himself.

BAD Leas, BAD Breases, and Ulcers.—
The treatment croneously pursued in these mast, in his fall striking the edge of the dock and instantly killing himself.

BAD Leas, BAD Breases, and Ulcers.—
The treatment croneously pursued in these case, is to drive the disease inwards, thus making matters far worse than by allowing it to take its natural course, as it only breaks out elsewhere with an aspect ten time, when he suddenly lead on the reached him, whom he suddenly lead of the way, however, and here wa would grant us our liberties without our having to fight for them, which is likely to be the case if a number of colonials are added to the population without any English to keep them in order. They are used to see Amenca—that is, the United States—the moment she establishes a territory, give the people immediately power to manage their own affairs, and only send them a governor to keep them in order; and it is only when to keep them in order; and it is only when their population is sufficient they are admit-ted to be a State and have a voice at Washington. How well this answers may be seen from the way the country is settling up, which it would never do if governed like as by an absentee governor, resident and who has all his interests in another colony, who has all his interests in another colony, and who keeps all the officials he can around him. He knows nothing of our wants; it is against his interest any settlement should be made in British Columbia or this town, and he looks narrowly at British Columbia as a mining ground for the improvement of his own property and the Hudson Bay Company's possessions in Victoria. The correspondent of the Times has just been here, and no doubt a letter has toria. The correspondent of the Times has just been here, and no doubt a lotter has lately appeared from him; the people here could scarcely be kept back from pelting him with eggs for the way he has written against this port and the people of the colony in general. The allusion to the necessity for Englishmen to keep the "Colonists in order," is very amusing. It is a kind of left-handed compliment, too ridiculous to merit comment, except to repudiate the idea of Engdishmen being more orderly than Colonists. We presume the real idea which was intended to be conveyed was that "Colonists" bred and born knew better what the country required than fresh Englishmen like the correspondent of the Mercury.

Ber Gen. Lamoriciere has accepted an invitation to visit Kilkenny, Ireland. Preparations are making to give him a brilliant reception, and the Kilkenny Journal says that "from the moment when he sets foot on Irish sail to the moment he leaves it, his route will be a series of ovation which may rouse the envy of a king."

Its One of the wealthiest planters in Mississippi writes to a Southern gentleman in New York that, unless he returns speedilly, his property will be seized as that of a disaffected person; that he himself is a Union man, but dare not say so for fear of mob violence.

RESISTING THE FEBERAL GOVERNMENT. Since the formation of the U. S. Government, there have been nine specific attempts to defy its authority:

The first was in 1782, and was a conspiracy of several officers of the Federal army to consolidate the thirteen States into one, and confer the supreme power on Washing-

The second was in 1787, called "Shay's insurrection," in Massachusetts.

The third was in 1794, popularly called "the whisky insurrection of Pennsylvania."

The fourth instance was in 1814, by the Hartford Convention of Federalists.

The fifth, on which occasion the different sections of the Union were brought into collision, was in 1820, under the administration lision, was in 1820, under the administration of President Munroe, and occurred on the question of the admission of Missouri into the Union,

The sixth was a collision between the Legislature of Georgia and the Federal Government in regard to certain lands given by the latter to the Creek Indians.

The seventh was in 1820, with the Checker of Georgia Court.

The seventh was in 12-5, whit the Cherokees in Georgia.

The eighth was the memorable nullifying ordinance of South Carolina, in 1832.

The ninth was in 1856, on the part of the Mormons, who resisted the Federal authorities. rity.

We clip the following extract from the letter of "An Occasional Correspondent" of the Livernool Mercury, who writes under PLATINA .- Recent investigations prove letter of "An Occasional Correspondent" of the Liverpool Mercury, who writes under date of November 4th from New Westminster. After speaking favorably of the silver mines, gold placers, and the expected "swarm of Chinese vermin," he dips boldly into political matters in the following spicy style:

British North America as a Confederacy.

The London News seems to think that the British North American colonies will soon be setting up for themselves as an independent Government, and apparently gives encouragement to this design. It says the Canadians have a resolute feeling that henceforth the control of the Home Government shall be merely nominal; and as the expenditure for the colonies is considerable, without any contribution to the national revenue, the News thinks it would be a good plan to let them take care of themselves, provided they will form themselves into a " If the whole of North confederacy. "If the whole of North America," it remarks, "is not to form a part of the United States, the best means of giving strength to the people north of the St. Lawrence is to follow the example of the American statesmen, and to make a new United States." It considers this step indispensable to their future development, and remarks that it is the duty of England to England. familiarize her colonies with the prospect of independence, and to make the path toward |
m NEW|that consummation as smooth as possible. Referring to the above, the St. Louis Democrat, an American paper, says:

It has been stated that the Duke of New-castle, since his return home, has been en-gaged upon a scheme for the federation of these colonies; but whatever may be the policy of the British Government in regard to them, it is at least questionable whether to them, it is at least questionable whether any serious opposition would be made to their assuming independence, or forming a Union with the United States, more partic-ularly if the Southern States should leave

A short time since, in an elaborate article, the New York Times demonstrated that in the event of the secession of the Southern States, it would become the immediate interest of the United States remaining to establish a protectorate in Mexico, and thus put a final stop to Southern fillibustering. It would, the Times argued, pave the way for the acquisition of territory for and the formation of free States around the slaveholding Confederacy, thus closing all hope of expansion, and at the same time opening up an extensive market for Northern manufactured goods. And in the event of disunion such a result would be certain to follow. At the same time Canada, in the Capital ---- $8,000,000. North, seems to be looking towards independence and a probable union to the United States.

Whether the Times and the Democrat are seeking to put the secessionists upon their good behavior by the above remarks, remains to be seen: but the article from the London News is certainly significant of a contemplatel change in the political condition of the British North American provinces.

Having given one side of the question, we now give the other. The London Free Press, a paper that does not seem to relish the idea of a separation of the Provinces from the Crown, thus refers to the project as broached in the London News:

The author of this plot [the Duke of New-castle] understands what the multitude do not, the use of the Crown in the protection of small States. It is by the Crown that some fifty or sixty Colonies are linked to England without their administration being carried on under the superintendence of the Parlia-rout at Wastmurster. Thus protection is ment at Westminster. Thus protection is combined with independence. The News says: "As things at present stand, indeed, it is apparent that the Canadas are in some respects more independent of Central Government in London, than the States of the Union are of the Federal Government at Union are of the Federal Government at Washington, since the Canadas are practically their own tax-masters. At the same time these Provinces enjoy the protection of England, and if they contribute something the contribute towards the civil and military estimate, they contribute nothing towards the navy. Thus they have their commerce protected without a farthing expense. Under such circumstances, than, it is by no means surprising that the Canadians should feel little anxiety

"The union of provinces has always been an insurrectional measure adopted for dean insurrectional measure adopted for defence, against intolerable oppression. Now it is adopted by the Mother country who tells the provinces that 'self-respect ought to prompt them to declare themselves independent.' Nor is the scheme limited in its operation to Canada. New Zealand is to be separated also, and the noble and solitary of the Church there is obtain in the effort of the Church there to obtain justice for the natives is put beside the raying of a mob.

The fires of religious hatred are studi-"The fires of religious hatred are studiously kept alive, so that they may blaze forth as they did the other day at Kingston, with all the fury of the times of John Knox. Nor is it irrelevant to observe that the same influence which exists in Canada, exists also in other colonies, as the disputes in New Zealand most fatally prove.

"The whole of the British Colonies, now the form integral discord and foreign."

preserved from internal discord and foreign attack by the link of the Crown, are to be thrown overboard to be the prey of factions within and aggression without, while England is actually pretending to grasp the Empire of China."

Progress of Liberty in France.

Two more decrees favorably affecting the press have been issued in France. One of these, re-organizing the different bureaus of the Department of the Interior, strikes out the words "of the press" entirely from the definition of the functions of M. de la Guerroniere, whose department was heretofore entitled "The Direction General of the OF THE LATE JAMES SANGSTER. Press, of Printing and the sale of Publications." The control of the press will still form a portion of his duties, but it no longer figures as a special object of surveillance. The other decree annuls the judicial condemnations which have been rendered against various papers, and also arresting all the suits which have been commenced. All the journals in France, therefore, have a fair, fresh start in life, having received pardon and absolution for all their former sins.

The next most important decree forms the first step towards the abolition of the passport system, by which British subjects are now allowed to travel in France without the necessity of passports. There is little doubt that this decree will be followed by the abolition of the entire system, in so far as it affects foreigners of any nation, but is probable it will still be required that French subjects leaving the country, shall obtain, as heretofore, permission to do so. The fact is, that since the invention of railroads and steamboats, the passport system, instead of being of any real value to the Government, FURNISHING GOODS, has only become a nuisance, and a source of annoyance to travelers. The English journals all speak in terms of the liveliest satisfaction at this new evidence of the Emperor's disposition to bind with still closer ties the alliance between France and

The "Contempt of Court" on the Race

Track. At 12 o'clock yesterday, Mr. Charles Bedford Young appeared before his Lordship Chief Justice Cameron, to answer the charge preferred against him by Attorney General Cary, of having, while in attendance on the races at Beacon Hill on the 6th inst, insulted him (the Attorney General) by calling him a "pimp" and threatening to insult him at every convenient opportunity, on account of some questions put to him during a late trial in the Court of Assizes.

Upon the demand of his lordship, Mr. Young read the following affidavit .

AFFIDAVIT:

1, Chas. B. Young, make oath and say, that I have read the affidavit of of George Hunter Cary in the above matter, and declare that though some of the important details set forth therein are true, the affidavit as a whole is essentially untrue and affidavit as a whole is essentially untrue and calculated to produce an unjust and unfounded impression against me, in the premises, to wit: I distinctly told the said George Hunter Cary "that he had not to apprehend any personal violence from me, but that I should employ the moral power that I possessed, and that the notice I gave him of affronting (not insulting) him did not refer to what he had already done, but was given in the following words, "If you avail yourself of having a little frizzled horse-hair on your head, to gratuitously insult me again, I shall resent it by affronting (not insulting) you, etc." (not insulting) you, etc."
That the said George Hunter Cary did not simply ask me "did you not carry on the business of a pawnbroker in San Francisco," but said in a vehement affirmative manner, "and you acquired your knowledge of the price of goods while you were a pawnbroker

That so far from intending any contempt of the Honorable Court, by restraining I studiously endeavored to avoid the commission of such offence.

(Signed) C. B. YOUNG.

mission of such offence.
(Signed)

Subscribed and sworn to before me on Monday, the 25th day of February, 1861.

Thomas G. Williams,

Registrar Supreme Court.

His Lordship—Have you any statement to make in support of the affidavit?

Mr. Young—Yes, your Lordship, I have. I appear here without counsel, and would core that if I had done as alleged by the not "msulf," and referred to what might occur in future, not to what had occurred. I never heard before, your Lordship, of a "contempt of court" on a race track; and besides, do not regard the Attorney General as any more than an ordinary barrister. He told us 15 months ago that he was going to be a superposite the particular than the state of the particular than that the state of the particular than the particular than the state of the particular than the particular than Court.

Mr. Young—Contempt of court is generally punished in a summary manner,— whereas a week clapsed before I received notice that a complaint had been made against me. It gives rise to the supposition against me. If gives rise to the supposition of vindictiveness on the Attorney General's part. When he asked me it I was a "pawnbroser" and a "member of the Hebrew persuasion," he put the questions for the purpose of insulting me. I shall call but one witness. I could have called four if your Lordship had taken up the case when I was first summoned. I will show that on the averaging in question that I noted in a I was first summoned. I will show that one the occasion in question that I acted in a dignified, proper, and gentlemently manner. I wish to call Mr. Gordon in order to show the impression that was made upon the jury by the questions put to me.

His Lordship said he could hear no withcrease in the gave.

Mr. Young-I believe the questions arose been made to prejudice your Lordship told that I am the author of the articles that have from time to time appeared against

His Lordship-(smiling) Oh, no; you are insulted any legally constituted authority

Mr. Cary-Mr. Young alleges that my affidavit is untrue, and yet he does not touch upon its allegations in any but a general manner. I am not afraid of personal vio-lence; it is moral violence that I apprehend. The case on trial in this Court was one of false pretences, and it was neces-sary to establish the difference in value besary to establish the difference in value between broadeloth and blankets. Ilaving been informed that Mr. Young had been a pawnbroker in San Francisco, I put the question to him. Your Lordship will remember that the witness did not appeal to the Court for protection. Mr. Young's remarks on the race-course go to show that it was clearly an attempt to intimidate the prosecuting attorney in the discharge of his duty. It makes no difference whether intimidation is attempted inside of a courtroom or outside of it; it is none the less a contempt of Court. In regard to the charge of vindictivness, your Lordship will remember that the very first day the Court sat after the attempt to intimidate had been made, I filed my affidavit before any other business had been transacted. I submit that the accused was clearly guilty of a contempt of court. I have severe and often unpleasant duties to perform, and I call your Lordship's attention to the fact that I must be protected in the fulfilment of those duties. If such protection is not accorded me, I shall have to do one of two things—take the law into my own hands, or submit to intimidation in all cases. I fully believed at the time of putting the question that Mr. Young had carried on the business of a pawnbroker in Sec. Exercises. carried on the ousliess of a pawnotocer in San Francisco. It was a very natural question, and, under the circumstances, proper and necessary. A stop must be put to such attempts at intimidation.

Mr. Young said that his record in California had been bright, and clear, and unblemished; he had always shown proper respect.

ished; he had always shown proper respect to public officers, and disclaimed any attempt at intimidation in this case. His rebuke had been calm, dignified, quiet and deserved. The questions put to him were calculated to lower him in the estimation of the public—they were framed for that purpose. Rather than submit to such indignities as the Attorney General had attempted to impose on him, he would rot in a dungeon and allow worms to feed upon his carcase.

His Lordship—Do you disclaim all intention of attempting to intimidate the Attortion of attempting to intimidate the Attor-ney General?

Mr. Young-I do, your Lordship, most

Mr. Young—I do, your Lordship, most emphatically.

His Lordship said it was a matter of the greatest importance to the proper administration of justice that counsel should have ample power to put such questions as they thought proper to witnesses—it was necessary for the liberty of the subject that they should have this license. If questions were put to the witness which he considered tending to degrade him, he has the right to apply to the Court for protection. Upon the filing of the affidavit of the Attorney General, a rule nist had been issued for the appearance of Mr. Young before this Court. He had filed an affidavit in reply to that of the Attorney General, and as he had disthe Attorney General, and as he had dis-claimed all intention of committing a con-tempt of Court, he would discharge the

rin San Francisco."

That to the best of my recollection the case of Fried alluded to in the affidavit of the said George Hunter Cary had little or nothing to do with the price of goods, and that therefore it was no more necessary to ask me if I were a pawnbroker, than if I belonged to the Hebrew perscasion, which the said George Hunter Cary did do also in the vehement affirmative manner described.

That the general impression is that the said George Hunter Cary did do also in the vehement affirmative manner described.

That the general impression is that the road for the purpose of mortifying me, and others have complained to me of his rude manner to them both in and out of Court.

That so far from intending aay contempt eleven o'clock a white man was observed provisions. versing with a northern Indian woman. The squaw was noticed to be intoxicated, and spoke to her companion in a loud tone of voice. About half an hour afterwards, cries of distress were heard proceeding from some bushes near the bridge, which continued for some time. A number of Indians heard the cries and soon after they had ceased sproceeded to the spot and found the lifeless body of a young Indian woman, belappear here without counsel, and would state that if I hal done as alleged by the Attorney General, I would have come forward and apologized as any other gentleman would do; but, your Lordship, I deny the truth of his affidavit. In speaking to him, I distinctly used the word "affront," and not "insult," and referred to what might occur in future, not to what had occurred. I heaver heard before, your Lordship, of a large of the spot where she was found. The some person who must have seized her by the hair of the head and twisted her neck till it became dislocated, and left her lying upon the spot where she was found. The body was conveyed to an Indian hut, and buried therefrom yesterday. The police have been engaged the last two days in endeavoring to ferret out the perpetrators, and resign his charge, and he has never yet been gazetted as Attorney General.

His Lordship said these remarks had nothing to do with what took place on the race course. The charge is that you used certain terms towards the Attorney General in regard to what had transpired in this Court they had left the house early on Monday morning, and not having returned, it is thought they have fled from town. The murder was a most cowardly one, and we fervently hope that the perpetrators may not escape a trerited punishment.

SHELDON'S GIFT ENTERPRISE, -- Through the egregious blunder of one of our compositors, the types yesterday morning made us say that there would be "$250 worth of prizes for which 250 tickets would be issued." It should have read that there will be $2,500 worth of prizes for which 2500 tickets will be issued. The prizes were yesterday exhibited in the show-window of Vaenberg's jewelry store, Yates street, and attracted much attention. There are some elegant and costly watches among out of the prejudice the Attorney-General has against me, and I believe an attempt has been made to projudice wear Landshin cased watch, valued at $300, for which $250 in cash will be paid the winner, if pre-ferred. They will remain on exhibition till the day of the drawing.

APRIL 2d, 1861, The Valuable Mercantile Property

THE VARIABLE INCICATION TO THE YEAR OF THE PROPERTY Section Number 8, on Fesquinnatt Harbor, extending back to the "Arm," with upwards of one-quarter of anile of water frontage on each, with deep water close in shore, in a more sheltered position than Constance Cove, and in the heaviest gale so protected that vessels can lie alongside a wharf with safety. Part of the frontage is very well adapted for a Dry Dock, and also a Patent Slip.

The Road from Victoria passes through the centre of the Property. The proposed Naval Depoi and Barracks are in the immediate vienity, and the proposed Canal uniting the two Harbors adjoins the Boundary.

posed Canal uniting the two transcess from dary.

The value of this Property is much enhanced, from the fact of the Imperial Government selecting this portion of the Harbor for Government Works, which are to be immediately commenced. The Property has been divided into various sized Lots, to suit the nature and importance of the ground, and will be offered at the upset price of $150 each.

There are more than 650,000 females employed in the United Kingdom as milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses and shirt-makers; and, their labor being manual, they are on an average the most enslaved, most dependent, and most unhappy of the industrial classes. Half a million of sewing machine are manual them. machines are much needed amongst them.

At the London Bridge station the annual number of passengers, according to an English paper, was no less than from eleven to twelve millions. At the same eleven to twelve minions. At the same time, it is stated, that the number of trains daily during the busy season, exclusive of empties, is three hundred and sixty-five, or a train every four minutes throughout the day and night.

Lord Rossmore, of Roscommon, Ireland, is dead. On the night his father died, Sir Jonah Barrington states, a supernatural visitor notified the members of his family, who were traveling in Europe, by knocking stea!thily at a bed-room door, and crying— Rossmore dies." When the mails from England arrived, the nocturnal message was confirmed.
